Early Carmelite Greets Tourists

"Go home, tourists," 1914 version, is pictured above. The affrighted group at right had driven over the San Juan grade from Sacramento, an adventurous undertaking in those days, according to the driver, Gladys Riegg, the lady in the striped dress. We now know her as Gladys Johnston. Undaunted by her experiences, she steps to the front to protect, left to right, her sister, now Mrs. F. C. Price of Palo Alto, another sister, now Mrs. C. F. Slonaker of Palo Alto, her mother, Mrs. Addie H. Riegg, who later married F. C. Price, Sr., and her brother, Robert C. Riegg, who lives now in Walnut Creek. The be-bonneted, warlike Indian protecting the primitive character of Carmel, is alas, not a native. He is Signor Antonio Corsi, at that time the world's most famous artists' model. His Indian costume was one among many in his unique collection used when he posed for painters in Europe and America. He was in Carmel that summer to pose for the Stickney summer school art class. He posed as an Indian at the Mission for a series of 12 paintings depicting the history of California, also. Besides the immortal picture, Carmelite Greets Tourists, above, Signor Corsi was the model for Holman Hunt's Light of the World, Sir Edwin Abbey's End of The Trail, and John Sargent's Hosea. (See Editor's Window.)

Editor's Window

Every Carmelite should spend at least a week in a summer resort, if for no other reason than to convince himself that Carmel is no longer such a place.

It was, once upon a time, perhaps until as late as 1940. But all of that has changed. We are now uneasily dedicated to the proposition that we are a residential community, whatever that is. And it's a convention which is pretty hard to square with our lively artistic heritage. As a matter of fact, it is totally unconvincing when examined against the glaring contradiction of the curious, persistent and prolific tourist in our midst. This latter misfortune which may yet be our undoing.

The summer resident, "summer folk" in the vernacular, has been, by and large, a not unpleasant solstitial phenomenon wherever he is found, especially in New England, upstate New York, Pennsylvania, and in La Jolla, Tahoe, the Napa Valley, and, indeed, once upon a time in Carmel.

Dedicated to civilized irresponsibility and indifference to care or useful pursuits, he became a familiar face and a light-hearted acquaintance, enlivening and enriching the local scene. He behaved conscientiously, took a benign but curious interest in wherever he was, and while enjoying the bounties husbanded the advantages in order not to spoil the very things which made his annual return worthwhile.

Living permanently in a resort town always seemed to have its seasonal excitement in the return of the "summer folk", and its periodic wistfulness in their departure, events as reliable and comforting as the orbits of swallows, snow and spring sunshine. Carmel-by-the-Sea experienced this, evolved from it and benefitted immeasurably by it.

But the tourist, unlike summer folk, cannot be said to contribute much except money. Individually they are probably quite decent people. (There is something protective in asserting this, since we are all on occasion tourists ourselves.) But the very nature of the occupation of being a tourist is vicarious and rarely sympathetic. I was struck by this when journeying recently from the west shore of Lake Tahoe, where we were sojourning as conscientious "summer folk", to Virginia City, where we were, for a day, transformed into tourists.

This unfortunate and melancholy tourist mecca is today one of the most doleful sights in the world. Unspoiled, as a disinhabited ghost town, its bleak decay could have a certain sad and tender fascination. But as it is, exploited to the limits of cheap and tawdry vulgarity, it is tragic. Yet this is the harsh and inevitable fate predictable for any place, inhabited or not, where the tourist, his conspicuous habits, his shallow needs and his lack of reciprocity are unwisely enticed and entertained.

Virginia City had no native vitality with which to resist. It was a lifeless shell profaned for gain and personal advantage, with no-

Unfamiliar Corridors

The Return To School

By Marjory Lloyd

Tuesday, some 600 students explored unknown territory after they arrived in buses and automobiles, on bicycles and by foot at the campuses of the Carmel Unified School District to begin a new academic year. By the end of the day, total enrollment in the seven schools was 2,418 pupils, but there were empty classrooms.

The boys and girls who trod unfamiliar corridors included kindergarteners, some first through sixth graders, and all seventh, eighth and ninth graders, also newcomers to the area.

All but the seventh, eighth and ninth graders, attended classes in established facilities and did not have the adventure of exploring a still-unfinished campus full of pitfalls for the unwary and unruly.

However, most of the seventh, eighth and ninth graders came prepared for discovery at uncompleted Carmel Junior High School, the district's newest facility situated at the entrance to Carmel Valley. Each had been mailed a map designating specific rooms, also a copy of his or her program showing the number and letter of the room in which each subject was to be taught.

"But, of course, some of them forgot their maps, and we had to rush more copies to the school," Mrs. Edith Skillman of the district's central office staff reports.

Although classrooms were ready at the junior high school, the gymnasium and the library were not; neither were the language laboratories. Trenchdiggers chugged on the unfinished roadways beside the covered walkways between the buildings. The sound of construction was a strong undertone for youthful, excited voices on Tuesday.

At the district's oldest facility, Sunset School, a new program

The City Council Wheels And Deals

A City Council which was at times oratorical, at times contentious and at times consumed in a fever of haste moved with agility through a short agenda last night in pursuit of justice, equality and civilized freedoms in Carmel.

An agreement providing for mutual aid among the several cities of the Peninsula and the County itself in the event of a natural disaster was approved, supplementing existing mutual agreements covering police and fire assistance. In the same vein the council authorized Mayor Eben Whittlesey to negotiate with the owners of three buildings which have been approved as disaster shelters, for permission to place emergency supplies on reserve, and if successful in the negotiations, to sign agreements with them.

The petition of Merle Murphy about barking dogs — dogs which bark excessively, to be precise — got as far as a very serious continuance. The committee in which the matter reposes, the committee on public welfare (Putnam and Whitaker) wanted more time to study the matter.

With the status quo of traffic the council dealt summarily. They rejected the plea of Leola L. Rum-

Day of the Pipers.— The parade of the Stuart Highlanders Pipe Band up Ocean Avenue to the Forest Theater and then back again to the Pine Inn after the concert naturally attracted hundreds of tourists, who watched curiously, baffled and excited. A large number congregated in front of Mary Sargent's Robert John shop, and each time she emerged to try to catch a glimpse of the parade herself, some bewildered tourist was sure to ask her what was going on.

Finally, as she came out to await the return parade of the band, a puzzled tourist turned to her from the throng gathered at the curb and asked, "why is everybody standing here looking up the street?"

A BRITISH VIEW OF U. S. WORLD POWER

The following article is taken in part from a talk delivered by Geoffrey Barraclough, Research Professor of International History, University of London. It appeared in the 23 August issue of THE LISTENER, a publication of the British Broadcasting Corporation. It is reproduced with the kind permission of J. R. T. Hopper, Overseas Publicity Officer.

In the sphere of sea power, there is at first glance a good deal of plausibility in the argument that, step by step, the United States has taken Britain's place. But if we look more closely we may wonder how far this explanation carries us. In the first place, while there is no doubt that Britain's position in the nineteenth century depended on its navy, it is evident that sea power is only one, and scarcely the most important, factor in America's world position today. This position rests not only on naval power but on a massive military power on land, such as Britain never aspired to possess, and on an immense technological potential, of which the H-bomb is the symbol. In other words, the pre-conditions of American policy today are radically different from the preconditions of British policy in the nineteenth century. Today the United States and the Soviet Union each exercises a primacy in its own sphere which for all practical purposes is unchallenged. On the other hand, the idea that England exercised a similar primacy in the nineteenth century — a primacy which subsequently 'shifted across the Atlantic'—is little more than a myth. Certainly neither the French nor the Germans would have admitted a British primacy in the years before 1914. Nor is it a fact, as Walter Lippmann once asserted, that 'naval power in British hands' was 'predominant' at that time 'over all other military power.' For example, naval power did not permit England to intervene successfully in Europe except in association with one or more of the continental powers; England could not prevent France from invading Spain, for instance, or Russia from from maintaining control over Poland. Outside Europe it could hardly have saved Canada if the Americans had decided—as Queen Victoria thought they would — to annex it at the time of the American Civil War or later during the Venezuelan crisis of 1895.

SEA POWER IN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY

Unlike the United States today, Britain in the nineteenth century was one of the leading powers, but not in any sense the dominant power. It depended for its position partly on its fleet and partly on the existence of a balanced multiplicity of powers among which it strove to maintain an equipoise. For British people in the nineteenth century sea power was essential for the defense of a far-flung empire; that was its raison d'etre. In the case of the United States the position is almost the reverse: its overseas empires—which of course, bears no comparison in territorial extent to the British empire of the nineteenth century—exists largely to provide strong-points for the defense of the North American continent. The implication — and I think it is an important one — is that the raison d'etre of American sea power today is basically different from the raison d'etre of British sea power in the nineteenth century. Or, in other words, even in this limited sphere the United States has not taken over the role of Great Britain, but has used its ascendancy to develop a role of its own—a role which is implicit in its history, just as the British role in the nineteenth century was implicit in British history.

This would be more easily understood if it were not generally assumed that the rise of the United States to world power is a phenomenon of the very recent past. Like other countries, the United States has had its periods of isolationism — the longest, perhaps, was that between the end of the Civil War and 1898, when it was bending its energies to internal reconstructions; the most notorious was the period between the rejection of the Treaty of Versailles and Pearl Harbor. But these periods of isolationism were not, as is often supposed, a normal pattern, with which American policy abruptly broke after 1945. On the contrary, the stream of 'manifest destiny' — beckoning America on to empire and to world power—reached back to the founding fathers, even though its waters sometimes flowed underground. Indeed, one of the misleading consequences of the theory that it is only in the last sixty years that the United States has taken Britain's place, is the way it obscures the strength of imperial traditions in American policy. Not unnaturally, this imperialism differed in a number of important ways from older imperialisms; not unnaturally, because it came at a different time and emerged from a different background. For instance, although the United States was not backward in securing strategic strong-points — aimed, as consistently as European imperialism had been, at the establishment of dependent colonies.

But the chief point of differentiation arose from the fact that, right through the nineteenth century, American policy was global in its connotations — it extended, in other words, to the Pacific and the Atlantic, to Japan and the Gulf of Mexico and to the Behring straits. British policy, on the other hand, was shaped by its contiguity to Europe; its problem, ever since the eighteenth century, was to strike a balance between its world interests and its European interests. Not so the United States. Ever since the time of Washington it had been a principle of American foreign policy to steer clear of European entanglements, and from a European point of view, this looked like isolation and was denounced by Europeans as isolationism. But isolationism from European affairs did not mean withdrawal from world affairs or global politics. On the contrary, it allowed the United States to concentrate, as neither Russia on the one flank, nor Great Britain on the other flank, could afford to concentrate, on securing its interests in the wider world.

EMERGENCE OF A WORLD SYSTEM

My point is that it is in this context — the context of an evolving world system — rather than as a simple process of taking over Britain's place that the rise of the United States to world power should be seen. The essential preconditions under which American policy operates are so different from those under which British policy operated before 1914 that what we see is discontinuity rather than continuity. The German historian, Hermann Oncken, surveying the world in the years between 1898 and 1905 — the years of the Spanish-American and Russo-Japanese wars, the years (in other words) when Japan and the United States broke into the great-power system which the European nations had hitherto dominated — said rightly: 'It is as if a totally different dynamic governs the relations between the powers.' This new and totally different dynamic sprang from the new pattern of global politics, out of which the United States and Soviet Russia ultimately emerged as the two protagonists, the two super-powers on a world-wide stage.

I want to suggest that we cannot understand this process — which is neither more nor less than the emergence of the world system under which we live today—if we treat it simply in terms of the substitution of the United States for Britain. The United States could not take over Britain's place in any literal sense, because with the change in the pattern of international relations which occurred when Europe ceased to be the main theatre of events, that place ceased to exist. The rise of America to world power signifies not a change of leadership in an existing system but the emergence of a new system. What Britain's place in this new system will be, whether it is destined to become simply one of a block of European powers under American's wing, or whether it is capable of remaining poised (as in the past) between Europe and the wider world—this is still not clear and may not be clear for some time. What is clear is that more has happened than a shift in primacy across the Atlantic. With the supersession of the European balance of power by a world balance of power postulated upon deterrence, the whole character of international relations has changed.

Adult School Opens

Carmel Adult School will start its fall semester on Tuesday. Fine arts courses include color and design, life drawing, outdoor painting (both beginning and advanced), portraits and sketching and painting.

Principles of banking is again being offered. A sign-up is being taken for the legal secretaries training and shorthand courses. If there is sufficient interest these classes will be started. A six-week typing class is being offered.

Other courses include citizenship-U. S. history, English for new Americans, art metal, mosaics, pottery, Carmel Parent Nursery School, Carmel Valley Parent Nursery School, sewing, French, Italian, Spanish (beginning and advanced), machine woodworking, lip reading, speed reading, writing for publication, and symphony orchestra.

There is a tuition fee of $5.00 to enroll in evening school. This allows the enrollee to take as many classes as wished. Additional fees will be charged in classes demanding special supplies and equipment.

The Adult School sponsors World Affairs Forums for which there is no admission charge. This fall the series is The British Commonwealth and the United States with special lectures on 5 Oct., 2 Nov., 14 Dec., and 4 Jan.

The Audubon Series is co-sponsored by the Carmel Unified School District and the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society.

For further information telephone the Carmel Adult School Mondays through Fridays from 1-4 p.m. and Monday through Thursdays from 7-10 p.m. The number is MAyfair 4-1714.

Letter To The Editor...

PEDESTRIANS

Dear Sir,

Here's a problem; What's the answer?

The constant procession of strolling pedestrians, particularly on our Ocean Ave. street crossings, is becoming an increasingly recurring cause of extended stoppage of automobile traffic.

I certainly approve our State laws which give pedestrians the right of way over vehicles at street crossings. While most other towns and cities use traffic lights to control both vehicular and pedestrian traffic, I trust that Carmel will be able to find another solution.

With few exceptions, auto drivers on Carmel streets are quite considerate of the pedestrian, whether at crossings or along the roads. Can some way be devised to bring effectively to the attention of our "not-in-a-hurry" pedestrians that, a moment's pause on the corner, on their part, would allow a few waiting automobile drivers to move on?

Sincerely,
L. T. Fletcher.

PUBLIC HEARING

Dear Sir:

I am referring the article by Jerry Doolittle on "Public Hearing" to the appropriate officials of the County of Monterey. The possibilities of this are tremendous. Being on the policy level today, I haven't worried about some of the more minute details, but it has great potentialities.

I am forwarding it to the County Planning Commission with a statement that this was published in your newspaper and I therefore presume with your blessing and approbation. Any complaints concerning the implementation of this program in the County of Monterey will be referred to you for answer.

Your respectful servant,
Tom Hudson,
Supervisor,
Monterey Count.

INSIDE PEOPLE . . . . .

By L. R.

Tadao Yamagishi, Chizuko Ohori and Yaheita Yokoi are each sixteen years old. They live in Tachikawa, Japan, a suburb of Tokyo noted primarily for a U.S. Air Force base with a population of about 25,000. Their high school has oriental meals three days in the week and American meals for another three days. The Mayor of Tachikawa is interested in student exchange with the United States. But he wants high school students, not college students, because the younger people are "more flexible."

San Bernardino, California, is the "sister city" of Tachikawa, and there is some degree of particular affection between the two places. There is also an active student exchange program. Tadao, Chizuko and Yaheita came to the United States last year because of this program. They stayed with American families in San Bernardino and attended high school there.

The students they left behind in Japan wanted them to discover certain things. All Japanese children are curious about these: what do American children do in the summer time? Does everybody here have two blue eyes? Are we all tall?

Very, in some eyes.

And what did these two young men and charming girl learn while they were here, for certainly they came to learn. Tadao said they had learned much, but hadn't learned to rush as Americans seem perpetually to be doing. And Tadao hadn't learned something else: how to stay in bed. "It's so funny," he laughed. "For the first time, I fall out of bed. This could not happen at home. We sleep on the floor, of course."

Tadao, Chizuko and Yaheita were in Carmel recently, on their way home to Japan. They were staying for the night with Iris and Bob Koplan at the Vagabond House, together with Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Schweitzer, who had guided and sponsored their stay in San Bernardino. It was there that I learned how important calling cards are to the Japanese. Presenting them is as nearly an equivalent to the American handshake as any other reciprocal greeting can be, but typically more subtle and delicate.

I gave each of them one of mine, finding for the first time how pleasant, and not perfunctory, such a ceremonial exchange can be. And wondering why we use cards so impersonally, or so formally, but never so meanfully.

They were taking many things home with them. Western cowboy outfits, complete with the play guns. And images of bowling alleys, outdoor theatres, supermarkets and Nisei who couldn't speak Japanese. Trivia, perhaps, of which the United States has an abundance.

But we also have other things, the things which nurture ambition. The San Bernardino Rotary Club had given each student the privilege of selecting fifty dollars worth of books. Chizuko selected Heidi, Hans Brinker, Los Angeles and Southern California, Racing Yachts and Dinghies, Gone With the Wind, Our 50 States, and Untermeyer's Great Poems.

Tadao chose Practical Mathematics, How To Prepare for College Entrance Exams, Sagan's Wonderful Clouds, and The Civil War.

Yaheita selected 101 Dalmatians, Mammals of North America, Familiar Animals of North America, American Heritage Book of Indians, Mammal Guide, and Fighting Indian Warriors. Yaheita also took home a dead horned toad — a great friend— a turtle, some hamsters and an astounding collection of bugs, which he was eternally picking up wherever he went, including Carmel.

I took them out that night for a brief glimpse of Carmel in the fog and lurking moonlight, because I thought Point Lobos might remind them of home. They exclaimed about it, of course. But when I said, "And that is the house in which Robinson Jeffers lived," they strained and stared and uttered soft "ohs" and "ahs."

For this was a name they knew, as they knew and loved Dickens, Tolstoy, de Maupassant, and Stevenson. Suddenly, as if their hearts as well as their minds were touched, they peered in the darkness and talked excitedly to one another. Robinson Jeffers!

I showed them the Stevenson House in Monterey. Once more they were excited. I took them to the Ginza, thinking again of their home, thinking to show them how close indeed we were to them. It was difficult to find someone there who could speak unimpaired Japanese. And so, instead, perhaps I showed them how far we were from them.

We concluded our tour at a coffee house in Monterey. I thought that they might be curious about beatniks, if beatniks were to be found. They looked about respectfully, but merely noted that in Japan the coffee houses are for families. And then I took them back to Vagabond House.

At the door I said goodnight to them. I asked Chizuko, standing there quietly and smiling gently in the darkness, "Do you think that student exchanges do any good? I mean, just three of you coming here, perhaps a few hundred others, who then go back to your millions at home. Do you take anything back that helps all of us?"

She thought for a moment, then answered softly, "The hundreds help. But if we could get thousands of young people doing this, there would be no more wars."

We said goodnight.

Course For Writers

The Carmel Adult School course, Writing for Publication, taught by local author, Maxine Shore, will begin on Tuesday evening, 7:30, in the Carmel High School library. Both beginning and advanced writers are invited to join the group.

The professional approach to writing and selling both fiction and non-fiction will be emphasized. Students will study the technique of the short story, novel and magazine article, both adult and juvenile. There will be lectures, informal discussion and criticism, experimentation and information on the many and varied markets open to free lance writers.

During the semester, professional writers will be invited to speak to the class. The most recent speaker was Adela Rogers St. Johns, well-known magazine short story writer, who spoke to the summer workshop class. Other previous speakers have included Henry Peart, author of historical books for young people; Richard Hamil, author - illustrator of children's books, and Mrs. Pauline Heisinger, children's librarian at Harrison Memorial Library.

Mrs. Shore has had wide experience in the writing field. The author of seven books, she has also sold hundreds of short stories and articles to national magazines, as well as light verse, plays, radio and television scripts. She has done book editing for Harper & Brothers, also magazine editing and newspaper work. Before moving to Carmel four years ago, she taught creative writing in Palos Verdes Estates.

Students will receive individual criticism of manuscripts, and those whose work shows sufficient promise will be recommended to reliable agents and editors.

Council Agenda.—The City Council meets on the first Wednesday after the first Monday of each month—an anachronism, based on early-day fiscal problems. But it is so encrusted with tradition it probably will never be changed. Actually, it can be expressed in another way: the meeting will fall as early as the 3rd of the month or as late as the 9th. For citizens wishing to petition the council or remonstrate with it, the agenda closes on Friday, at 5:00 p.m., on the week preceding the meeting.

Gypsy Held Over

The musical comedy, Gypsy, starring Ruth Crews and Allen Jenkins on stage at the Wharf Theatre in Monterey, has been such a hit that it will be held over for four extra performances. The run has been extended to play through Saturday night. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. There will be no Saturday matinee.

Gypsy is based on the memoirs of strip tease queen Gypsy Rose Lee and ran two years on Broadway. The show's score contains half a dozen songs that became popular hits, including Everything's Coming Up Roses and Small World.

The Wharf production has a cast of 30 singers, dancers, and actors. Gypsy is the final show of the Wharf's summer season, and there will be no extension past 8 September.

New Shows In Carmel Galleries

Galerie de Tours

Robert Kaller opened a one-man show of paintings by William Weber at his Galerie de Tours with a preview party for the artist on Friday. The paintings will remain on exhibit all this month.

Pennsylvania - born, William H. M. Weber received his art training at the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts and the Museum School of Art in the same city. Since World War II, he has lived and painted on the West Coast.

Included in the Weber show at the Galerie de Tours are serious impressions of the Amish people of Pennsylvania, a frivolous study of a butterfly - adorned woman's hat, another picture with plastic over-painting. In all, 25 pictures are on exhibition.

Among the museums and galleries in which Weber has exhibited are the De Young Museum, San Francisco Museum, Portland Museum and the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City. His work is in the permanent collections of the City of San Francisco, the Ford Foundation, the Library of Congress and the Department of the Interior in Washington, D. C. The majority of his paintings, however, are in private collections in this country and in Europe.

At the San Francisco Galerie de Tours, 559 Sutter Street, an exhibit of the work of William Gropper may be seen through September 10.

A pupil of Robert Henri, George Bellows and Howard Giles, this artist has work in the permanent collections of major museums throughout the United States and he has won numerous art awards.

Carmel Art Association

Yesterday a new exhibit of paintings and sculpture by members of the Carmel Art Association opened in the organization's galleries on Dolores Street. Marjorie Doolittle was chairman of the hanging committee for the September show.

The board of directors of the association will meet on Monday evening at 7:30 p.m.

Laky Galleries

Through 15 September, the Laky Galleries are displaying work of Joseph Domjan, a master of the color woodcut. He has evolved a complex technique of overprinting that produces varied textures and remarkable depth of color. Often derived from Hungarian folk traditions, his motives abound in decorative detail, however, the artistic tradition of the past is transformed by his twentieth-century artistic vision and technique into sensuous, brilliant treatments.

The Domjan method of printing is to pulverize dry pigment with the hands, then grind it extremely fine, add poppy-seed and lavender oils and French turpentine. He mixes a desired color in sufficient quantity to print five or six proofs at a time, then applies an even film of oil paint to the relief surface of his block with a flat oil brush. Next a sheet of Japanese paper is placed on the inked surface and held for printing by an ingenious device. His thumb is his printing instrument. The prints are, when concluded, fantasies and pastorales.

Joseph Domjan has had shows in Switzerland, England, Scandinavia, Hungary, Canada, and in all the larger cities of the United States, also at universities throughout this country, and his work has been included in seven international exhibitions.

Museums and art galleries in the United States, France, England, Scandinavia, Switzerland, China, Mongolia and Brazil have acquired Domjan woodcuts for their permanent collections.

LEONARDO DA VINCI MODELS

An exhibition at Monterey Peninsula College in November will bring to the Peninsula models of the inventions of Leonardo da Vinci. This show will be sponsored by International Business Machines Corporation.

Symphony Auditions

John Gosling, Monterey County Symphony conductor, will hold auditions for prospective orchestra members in Sunset School auditorium on Monday evening at 7:30.

Ability rather than age will be the criterion for admittance to the orchestra whose members encompass high school students as well as senior citizens. All qualified musicians within the county who are interested in auditioning are asked to come prepared with a selection from the standard repertoire. They will also be expected to demonstrate their sight reading ability.

Through these auditions, conductor John Gosling hopes to round out all sections of the orchestra, and states that there are special opportunities for string players.

Newcomers to the area as well as previous symphony members (those who did not participate last season) will be especially welcomed at the auditions.

The orchestra at present is comprised mainly of talented volunteer musicians who come from various walks of life. Among them are doctors, teachers, accountants, service people, postmen, carpenters, retired people and a large number of gifted students. They represent such a variety of areas as Monterey, Carmel, Pacific Grove, Seaside, Fort Ord, Marina, Salinas, King City, and Watsonville.

Local Artist To Have San Francisco Show

John Boit Morse of Pebble Beach and Alamos, Mexico, will have his first San Francisco one-man exhibition of paintings at the Feingarten Galleries, 535 Sutter Street, from 12 September through 4 October.

Mr. Morse was born in San Francisco. He studied at the Yale Art School, the Chicago Art Institute and Instituto Allende in Mexico, also with Howard Warshaw in Santa Barbara. His work is included in numerous private collections.

Familiar with all media, John Boit Morse has no hesitation in using them freely. He is a painter who combines in his work the rare qualities of energy, vitality and curiosity. His painting is inventive and highly personal.

An invitational preview and reception will be held 11 September.

Shows At Montalvo

Villa Montalvo galleries, near Saratoga, will feature, this month, paintings and treasures of Joan Tan, whose mother was a Chinese royal princess descended from the Tang dynasty.

Watercolors, which combine Western and Oriental art, plus some of Mrs. Tan's authentic Chinese treasures, some 3000 years old, will occupy West Gallery during the month-long art show. There will be wall hangings of great beauty and age, as well as jade, vases and silk mats. Many of the Ming Dynasty "objets d' art" are original decorations of the one-time Imperial Palace, where Mrs. Tan often was a guest. These were taken out of China by the artist, who lives in Atherton, just before the country came under Communist rule.

A display of decorations in pods and cones by students in the Montalvo classes of Eleanor Van Rensselaer will be shown in East Gallery, and an exhibit of the art of other members of the faculty will occupy the Villa Montalvo library.

Dr. George Harris will show oil painting, and Dr. Herbert Sanders, ceramics; Maynard Stuart, watercolors; Mrs. Van Rensselaer, plant material designs; Jean Ray Laury, a "stitchery" hanging.

On Sunday, at 3 p.m., Mrs. Tan will give a free public demonstration of her painting techniques, followed by refreshments to be served by members of the gallery committee.

Villa Montalvo is open free to the public Tuesday through Sunday, each week, 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Where There's Life

By Andre Hope

Leaves and apples
Cool winds invade hidden gardens
Autumn or Eden?

Here and now, both, I think. As you may have noticed above, I always feel a touch of Japanese in the fall. Leads me to excursions into such places as the Oriental Shop, the Tokyo Shop, and Marsh's. If I were only using yen or just a yen for browsing, I'd be way ahead. Not that their items are so highly priced, simply that my desires are so highly spiced (avid is another word for it, or just plain greedy). Inevitably, too, there has to be dinner at the Ginza in Monterey. There, in this time of the year, I have a peaceful passion for Sashimi, especially of fresh salmon. You just have to be peaceful in that Oriental atmosphere, with the girls coming and going as quietly and beautifully as butterflies. You are wreathed in the scented steams of the various dishes and acutely appreciate a friend you never knew was so dear until you knelt on the cushions before the traditional low table together. Knives and forks are permissible, of course, but you never realized how vulgar they looked until you saw them beside the graceful chopsticks, which never need hurry food from bowl to lips. I'm giving you the background to prepare you for sashimi, which is, simply, very fresh, beautifully chilled raw fish, sliced thin and served with a sauce involving shoyu. An added garnish is a small serving of Japanese horseradish on a tiny carrot cup. It is green and looks like pureed peas. If you're some kind of a beast (my kind) you'll tell your least favorite guest (or most gullible) that it is pureed peas. I might add that it has ten times the power of the hottest American horseradish!

Fall is the time, too, for buying the fascinating spider chrysanthemums at the N. B. Flower Shop and taking them home to savor the delight of arranging them Japanese style in your prettiest bowl. While still in this artistic mood, I attended the opening of William H. M. Weber's show at the Galerie de Tours and found it most interesting. I would say more except that I have often been told by my painting friends that I am no art critic. (Can't imagine why they say this as I like all their endeavors even when they don't—or maybe that's the reason?) Was saddened to hear there that Jane E. Parker, den mother of the Wharf Playhouse, suffered a mishap on her recent return from Europe; gladdened to hear that Lorraine Hoffman of the Pebble Beach Gallery is on her way to Belgium for a vacation . . . Afterwards, stopped at Whitney's for a jolt of sherry. Told Willard I would advise against this for anyone on a diet (me for instance?) as at cocktail time he insists on passing around a pizza that is really—well—who can say "no"? (Like me for instance?)

Another of early fall's more esoteric pleasures is dining at the lingering twilight hour at the Mission Ranch on broiled squab! Delighted to discover that Lou is back as the dining room hostess. She's a woman who really rates the title.

Labor Day week end now past, I feel it's time to raise a last ice cream cone in a toast to the departing summer guests, to the vanishing Bermuda shorts and stretch pants set. Safe transport to the Polaroid cameras, transistor radios and picnic baskets. Happy memories to the gatherers of rocks, shells, souvenirs and poison oak (or is it ivy?). Welcome to the next visitors—the grandmas and grandpas who have been sitting home all summer baby-sitting the last groups' broods. They NEED us!

They Write About Us In New York, Dayton

Last month the New York Times devoted considerable space to Carmel's beauty and the Dayton, Ohio, Journal Herald reprinted, almost completely, Larry Rose's essay entitled FOG:$;!,i&!

In a Times' magazine article on the four prettiest towns in the United States—Marblehead, Massachusetts; Tryon, North Carolina; Aspen, Colorado; Carmel, California—noted naturalist Donald Curross Peattie observes, "Washed by the winds of another ocean, stands what is perhaps the prettiest of all towns in America—Carmel."

He relates how early residents determined to keep their setting primitive and that now we have arrived at "a happy compromise". He also remarks about our "art center" activities, Point Lobos, cypresses, sea lions, pelicans, Seventeen Mile Drive, Carmel Mission Basilica and ends: "The Carmel visitor may, indeed, find himself not only lingering, but even settling. For, east or west, in mountains or by the seaside, there is a rare, rich flavor to life in this jewel among America's little towns."

Marj Heyduck devoted her entire Third and Main column in the Dayton, Ohio, Journal Herald to the Pine Cone's FOG essay but declares "I LIKE fog, especially the Carmel kind that prompted Carl Sandburg's famous remark."

She also quoted Mr. Rose's comments on the removal of the stop signs at the corner of Mission and Ocean, which he suggested should be replaced, on all four corners, with signs saying "Repent".

"That's the way it is in independent, individual fogbound Carmel," says Marj Heyduck.

Honors At The Fair

Winners In Fair's Floriculture Section

Carmel residents won an impressive number of awards in the floriculture section of the Monterey County Fair. Leading the list of prize winners was Mrs. L. E. Gottfried who was given 14 ribbons: a first in container gardening, two first and three seconds in the cut flower division, a first, second and two thirds for pot plants, and a first, second and two thirds for ferns.

Mrs. E. A. Odello won first, second and third place for table settings, a second in dry composition, two thirds for arrangements, a second and third in pot plants, and a second in container gardening—a total of nine awards.

Eight prizes went to Eric Mayell: two first and a second for cattleya, a first for cypripediums, a second and two thirds for orchids, and a second in cut flowers.

Mrs. R. H. Konig captured a second in miniatures, a second and third in dry miniatures, a second in arrangements, and two first and a second in miniatures and dry miniatures.

A. C. Lafrenz's awards were two seconds and two thirds in pot plants. Captain E. A. O'Neill won a third in table settings; Mrs. Katherine E. S. O'Neill a first for center arrangements. A third place ribbon went to Mrs. W. M. Randolph's table setting.

Miss Hallie Samson garnered two first for pot plants, two firsts and two seconds for potted plants. Mrs. Frances L. Sweeney, in dry compositions, was awarded a first and third place.

Pebble Beach floriculture winners included Ross M. Barnes, ten firsts and one second; Mrs. Nick La Sorella, six firsts, five seconds. Mrs. Elizabeth G. Baldwin, a second; Mrs. Richard Bennett, three firsts; Mrs. George Davis, Jr., a second; Edith H. Jones, a first; Eva K. Templeton, a first and third; Pans Town, three firsts, a second and third; Mrs. H. L. Weber, two firsts.

Carmel Valley winners in the floriculture section were: Alice Ahl, two first and a third; Mrs. John K. Mortenson, a first, two seconds and four thirds; Marian E. Weygers, two firsts, a second and third.

The Carmel Orchid Society took a first and second place for its entries.

MPC Lecture Series

Monterey Peninsula College will present four nationally-renowned speakers this year on the junior college's evening lecture series, open to the public without charge.

For the first lecture on 14 September, Robert Welch, founder of the John Birch Society, will speak. His subject will be In Just Ten Years.

Carl Sandburg, poet, bard and Lincoln biographer, will follow on 24 October.

Dr. William C. Menninger, president of the Menninger Foundation will talk on 15 February.

World-renowned historian and author, Arnold Toynbee, will close the series on 5 April.

All lectures will be presented in the Armory on the campus at 8 p.m.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone

Carmel Artist Wins Fair's Top Art Prize

Carmel artists won an impressive number of awards for work exhibited in the art show displayed last month at the Monterey County Fair.

Ethlyn Crouch (Mrs. Steve Crouch) won the best in show award donated by the City and County of San Francisco with her oil painting which took first place in the professional-traditional division.

Other first place winners in various divisions were Nancy Johnson, professional-traditional watercolor; Rupert Leach, professional-contemporary abstract oil; Harold Mack, amateur oil.

Second place awards went to Sue Sally Hale, amateur oil; Sophie Harpe, professional-contemporary abstract watercolor; Jessie MacGregor, professional-traditional oil.

Winners of third place ribbons were Sam Colburn, professional-contemporary abstract; Nell Walker Warner, professional-traditional oil.

Honorable mentions were given to the work of Howell Armor, professional-traditional sculpture; Marjorie Doolitte, professional-traditional oil; Fred Klepich, professional-traditional watercolor.

John La Pierre of Pebble Beach garnered a professional-contemporary abstract oil second place.

Seconds were also taken by two Carmel Valley artists. Alexander Weygers was awarded the professional-traditional sculpture second place award; G. Warner a similar award in amateur watercolor. Eugene Baker, also of the Valley, was given an honorable mention in the professional-traditional oil division.

Stanley Ewig Named Branch Bank Manager

Stanley E. Ewig of Carmel was today named manager of the new Carmel branch of the Security National Bank of Monterey County, it was announced by William A. Burkett, president.

Mr. Burkett said the the Carmel branch of the independent bank, located in the Carmel Rancho on Highway One at the entrance to Carmel Valley, will be open to the public on Saturday, 15 September, maintaining Saturday banking hours from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and hours from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday as a convenience to customers and to Carmel businesses.

Edwin H. Ewig, former vice president and director of the Bank of Carmel, father of Stanley Ewig, has been elected to the board of directors of the Security National Bank, Burkett also announced, as has been Dr. Clyn Smith, Monterey surgeon and Carmel resident.

J. O. Handley, Carmel building materials supplier, Gladys Johnston, Carmel realtor, Anita Doud, prominent Monterey County civic leader, and Charles O'Gara, Monterey attorney, have been elected to the advisory board.

Stanley Ewig was formerly associated with his father at the Bank of Carmel. He is a graduate of Carmel High School and of the New York Institute of Finance. After being with the Bank of Carmel for 10 years he became the Carmel branch manager of a national brokerage firm.

Mr. Ewig is treasurer of the Carmel chapter of the Monterey Cancer Society and of the American Red Cross. He is the past treasurer of the Carmel Lions Club, of the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies, and of All Saints' Episcopal Church.

INVESTMENT LECTURES

A four-week course on investments will be offered in Monterey by Dean Witter & Co., under the direction of resident manager Thomas E. McCullough. Presented without charge on four successive Thursdays, commencing 13 September at 7:30 p.m., the course will cover such subjects as operation of the New York Stock Exchange, interpretation of financial news and personal investment planning and management. The Monterey office of the major investment banking and brokerage firm is located at 555 Abrego St.

ASSESSED VALUES

The State Board of Equalization has determined that the ratio of assessed to full cash value of locally assessable tangible property in Monterey County is 25.2%. The statewide weighted average is 23.8%. Highest: Sierra County, 26.6%. Lowest: Tehama County, 18.7%.

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

President Dale W. Hirt of San Benancio Canyon has announced that the first meeting of the Monterey Bay Area Boy Scout council will meet this evening at 5:00 at Wonderlodge, Salinas, and continue through dinner.

A review of summer activities at Pico Blanco Scout Reservation and appointment of committee personnel for the 1962-63 scouting program year will highlight the meeting.

CARMEL BUSINESS ASSOCIATION

The fall business and dinner meeting of the Carmel Business Association will take place next Thursday evening at La Playa Hotel. A social and cocktail hour at 6:30 p.m. will be followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m.

Invited as "very special guests" for the evening are Mayor Eben Whittlesey, Councilmen Herbert Blanks, Jim Buffington, Frank Putnam, and Francis Whitaker. Also invited as "special guests" are Floyd Adams and Glenn Kearns in recognition of their survey and report of the Carmel parking situation.

Officers of the Carmel Business Association are Gladys McCloud, president; Leo Tanous, vice president; August Johnston, treasurer; Kay Huntington, executive secretary.

On the executive committee of the association are Howard Brunn, Sidney Dibble, Ray Draper, Hank Fonseca, August Johnson, Gladys McCloud, Jim Pruitt, Don Sands, Steven Sassoon, and Leo Tanous.

TAXES ON BUSINESS SALES

HR 10650, a bill now pending in Congress, provides that: where the proceeds from the sale of fixed assets of a business exceeds its depreciated value, the gain realized to the extent of the accumulated depreciation must be classified as "ordinary income;" the gain in excess of accumulated depreciation as capital gain. It's being fought, vigorously, on the grounds that it is exposing business to double taxation, particularly all stockholders, whom section 337 of the Internal Revenue Code sought to protect.

ALLIANCE FRANCAISE

The Alliance Francaise of the Monterey Peninsula is organizing a bazaar on Saturday 15 September in the patio adjacent to the Coq d' Or restaurant. Sandwiches and French pastries will be available during the outdoor sale, which will take place between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Proceeds of the bazaar will go toward the Alliance's scholarship program for Peninsula high school students.

General chairman of the event is Mrs. Robert Clampett, Carmel, assisted by Mrs. James L. Hathaway, Pacific Grove; Mrs. Germaine Olivier, Carmel; Mrs. Claude Courteol, Pebble Beach; William Cano, Carmel.

Anyone wishing to donate appropriate items to the bazaar—jewelry, knickknacks, books, but no clothing — is asked to call FR 2-1138 or MA 4-3185.

CRAFTS GUILD

At the Carmel Crafts Guild meet- next Friday evening, Raden Soekardi, Army Language School instructor, will display and demonstrate Indonesian crafts, carvings, paintings and ceramics. He and his wife will be in native costume, and Mr. Soekardi will also dance. The meeting will be held at the Carmel Art Association gallery.

The weavers' section of the Crafts Guild will meet tonight at 7:30 at the home of Mrs. Alma Anderson.

HIGH TWELVE

At tomorrow's regular noon meeting of the Carmel High Twelve Club (at the Masonic Temple) attorney David Gill will speak on the subject of wills. All master Masons are invited to attend.

INSURANCE AWARD

Helen Small of Carmel has qualified as a member of the 1962 Star Club of the New York Life Insurance Company. The award is in recognition of sales records set by the company's most successful agents.

AUDUBON SOCIETY

The first fall meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society will be held in the music room of Carmel High School on Friday, 14 September, at 8 p.m. Captain Elgin B. Hurlbert, president, will preside and an interesting program has been planned by Judson Vandevere.

Several field trips have been scheduled for the month. A tour of the Monterey Peninsula will be led by Fremont Ballou on 17 September. The group will meet at El Estero Park on Camino El Estero near Fremont Street at 9 a.m. Birds in the park and along the waterfront will be identified.

Mrs. Florence Haas, field trip chairman for the Santa Cruz Bird Club, extends an invitation to interested persons to participate in a trip to the Palm Beach area west of Watsonville on Saturday, 22 September. Meet at the west end of Beach Road at 9 a.m. This road is a continuation of Wall Street in Watsonville.

A get-together breakfast at Hilbert's Creamery in Carmel at 8:30 a.m. will precede a trip to Big Sur State Park on Saturday, 29 September. Those going directly to the park will meet at the entrance at 9:30 a.m. James Blee will explain interesting growth and birds along the trail.

Persons interested in attending the meeting and the trips are cordially invited to attend. Bring a picnic lunch for all day trips. For more information, telephone Captain Hurlbert, FR 2-2278.

WOMANS' AUXILIARY

Dr. Ronald J. Menmuir of Monterey Peninsula College will be the speaker at the first fall meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Church of the Wayfarer. Dr. Menmuir will speak on Evolution and the Birth of the Spirit, and the theme for the year, Enrichment Through Understanding, will be introduced with the announcement of programs planned for the coming months.

Mrs. Charles W. McDaniel, president, will conduct the meeting, to be followed by a tea planned by the new executive board. Mrs. Leonard J. Fletcher, past president, and Mrs. Charles H. Burrill will preside at the tea table. The meeting is open to all women who are interested and will start at 1:00 p.m.

TOWN HOUSE

Raden I. Soekardi will speak on the Arts, Crafts and Dance of Indonesia on Wednesday at 3:00 p.m. at Carmel Foundation.

Those who heard Mr. Soekardi several months ago will remember that he was taking a leave of absence from the Army Language School to go home to marry the bride of his mother's choice. Mrs. Soekardi will be with her husband this time; they will demonstrate Indonesian dance and show arts and crafts.

The monthly luncheon will be on Monday at noon. Reservations are now due.

SYMPHONY GUILD LUNCHEON

The Monterey County Symphony Guild held its "Prelude" luncheon at the Mark Thomas Inn today.

Willard Tressel, violinist, was guest artist, accompanied by Mrs. Joey Oleata. A former member of the celebrated Griller String Quartet, Mr. Tressel appeared here as concert master of the Bach Festival orchestra four years ago.

The luncheon was preceded by a business meeting with Mrs. Frank G. Ringland, president, presiding, assisted by Mrs. Austin R. Frey, by-laws chairman.

Mrs. Lewis Fenton outlined a plan to collaborate with York School on a fund-raising plan for the Symphony Guild.

KIWANIS

At the luncheon meeting of Carmel Kiwanis last Thursday at Tom's Cafe, Judge Eugene Harrah spoke on What Would You Do As A Judge Of A Municipal Court? "When an accused person is found guilty," said Judge Harrah, "the judge must ask himself what will be best for this man, his family, the community. A judge is a law student who corrects his own papers."

Sport Cars

BY ED LESLIE

Why don't we have more than two race week ends per year at Laguna Seca? Only space limitations (imposed by the editor, not me) prohibit my going on and on.

Del Monte Properties Company, which generally seems to think farther ahead than most of the Peninsula, started sports car racing in the early 1950s and practically made the sport in California. The crowds were amazing, and so was the racing. We gather that some profit was possible during the race week end, what with thirst, hunger, and the price of admission. However, some drivers and car owners objected to the less-than-resilient pine tree trunks, feeling that it might be nicer to leave the course here and there in an emergency, such as missing a turn or forgetting to brake in time. Little actually was said, for fear of creating an impression of insufficient courage.

But about the same time some property owners began objecting to the thousands of spectators who were practicing eminent domain on their gardens, patios, and even rooftops. The consequence of being cut off from the world for days on end, and losing to race spectators everything the deer didn't destroy became too much for the Pebble Beach residents. Net result, no more Pebble Beach races.

What to do? We couldn't lose the big attraction, the tourists, the publicity. Heads got together. Property was found, Army property, but a lease had to be signed. By whom? The Chamber of Commerce wasn't exactly crazy about the idea of accepting possible liabilities, so finally SCRAMP was formed. The lease and agreement, calling for two race week ends a year, was then signed. But that was just the beginning.

The sum of $90,000 had to be raised to do the job, even though Wally Holm had worked out design, Granite Construction Company had agreed to work at reduced rates, and everybody was prepared to do something for nothing.

It had to be that way, and the story of raising funds — notes signed by just about everyone in business around here, in addition to a big one from Kjell Qvalle, head of British Motor Corporation of San Francisco—and the story of Lou Gold's negotiations with the Sports Car Club of America — are legends all by themselves.

Today we are racing at Laguna Seca, twice a year. It isn't easy, and here are a few reasons why there won't be more than two week ends. First, the lease permits only two races; that's a good reason. Then, the tourist industry isn't interested in bringing in more people during the busy season. That leaves the fall and spring. We've been out on Laguna during a sprinkle of rain and nothing on wheels could get in or out on that clay when it's wet. So, we insure against rain and hope that the races come after the spring showers and before the "early" fall rains.

Then, too, there are three pieces of property which converge in the center of the track itself, two leased to ranchers for grazing and one in training use by the Army itself. Before a race, all the stock must be moved, the Army training rescheduled, the grass cut and removed, the concession booths arranged, communications installed, course repaired, national publicity arranged, drivers throughout the nation solicited and signed, sanctions obtained from national and international racing groups, tickets printed, guards and help hired. Thousands and thousands of hours must be expended so that, finally, a bunch of silly guys can drive little colored cars around in a circle for awhile. It takes another month to bail out of a race, maybe to pay off a bit of the mortgage and make returns to the supporting charities.

Have another race or two a year? Oh, no! SCRAMP couldn't stand such good luck. The Army, the farmers, the workers, the entrants, and the spectators couldn't possibly! Could they?

PBSCC Sponsors Car Event Sunday

An "autocross," a tight maneuvering event of sports cars competing individually against the clock over a small, twisting track, will be held by the Pebble Beach Sports Car Club at 10:00 a.m. next Sunday at the Presidio of Monterey. Conducted as a benefit for the Community Hospital, which will receive all of the proceeds realized from entry fees and a $100 pledge of the club itself, the event will be free to spectators.

Allan Patterson, speed chairman for the club, announces that some of the Peninsula's most accomplished drivers, such as Ed Leslie, Red Geeseman, Peter Stuber, Rick Hilgers, Don Wester and Fraser Sibbald, will be entered. Whether "Drift" Rose will enter the notorious competition-hinged Rover "75" is still a matter of excited speculation.

"We want to help the hospital in our small way," says Patterson.

MYSTERY FRACTURES FOUND IN RUNNERS

Many a quarter-miler has been running around on a broken leg without knowing it, three scientific sleuths have discovered. Called a "fatigue fracture," the break usually defies X-ray detection and masquerades as a sprain.

Concerned over reported instances of track athletes, particularly middle - distance runners, pulling up lame and staying that way for months despite negative X-ray findings and the usual treatments for sprain, a trio of U.C.L.A. investigators set out to learn why. The three were Doctors Martin Blazina and Robert Watanabe of the medical school faculty, and track coach Elvin Drake.

Their findings, reported in California Medicine, official scientific journal of the California Medical Association, showed that the fatigue fracture usually develops from intensive training on a hard track. Given a rest from training (normal walking causes no difficulty), the athlete usually is relieved of pain "in three or four months" and the fracture heals itself. The healing process often provides the only X-ray evidence that a break had occurred.

Most Fascinating Picture Of Week

PICTURED ABOVE IS WORLD'S FASTEST PASSENGER VEHICLE—THE CAR, NOT THE BICYCLE. The car, a 1962 Plymouth Fury, is supposed to have recorded 190.073 mph for a flying-mile run during the Bonneville National Speed Trials, on 25 August.

The bicycle, obviously stock, may have been used to pace the Plymouth, although its speed for the flying mile was not reported.

ANTLERLESS DEER HUNTS

The Department of Fish and Game has stated that a substantial number of permits for antlerless deer hunts in Monterey and San Luis Obispo counties during September and October are going begging. Only 1,079 applications have been received for the 2,550 permits available for the nine such hunts.

Local hunters, Ends Fouratt among them, have observed that the permits are easier to come by than the deer to shoot them with. The season, hunters are saying, is exceedingly poor, with down-coast shooting providing the best of poor results.

High School Graduate All Saints' Preacher

The Reverend Samuel Earl Smith of Walnut Creek, Carmel High School graduate of 1954 and recently ordained a deacon in the Episcopal church, will return to his home parish next Sunday afternoon to preach from the pulpit in All Saints' Church. Mr. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Smith of Mesa Drive, is currently serving as assistant in St. Paul's Parish in Walnut Creek. The Evensong Service at which Mr. Smith will preach will be at 5:15 p.m.

Earlier in the day, the local Episcopal parish will begin the fall session of Sunday School classes at the 9:15 a.m. service. The associate rector of the parish, the Reverend Peter Farmer, will preach at 11 a.m. The newly-reorganized youth group, under the sponsorship of Charles Downes, Dennis and Dorothy Gorman, will meet in the parish hall at 7:30 p.m. for its first program.

HI LIGHTS

BY TOM ARNOLD

Dear Carmel Students:

I have been chosen to be editor of a student page in this newspaper for the next year. Both Mr. Rose and I feel that it is time the students had some say in the community.

Among my plans for the future are a weekly calendar which lists all of the games, dances, school functions, and Youth Center activities for the following week. I hope that interviews with candidates for school elections will be possible. Also included will be sports stories and game standings. I have many more plans, but they can be successfully executed only with you, the CHS and CJHS Student Bodies cooperating. Anyone who is interested in writing news stories, articles, or other things, please contact Tom Arnold, either personally or at MAyfair 4-2356.

Carmel students will be treated to twenty-five holidays during the coming school year, excluding week ends. Following is a school calendar for the School Year 1962-63.

3 Sept. Labor Day (Monday)
10 Sept. Admission Day (Monday)
12 Nov. Veterans' Day (Monday)
22-23 Nov. Thanksgiving Holidays (Thursday and Friday)
24 Dec. - 4 Jan. Christmas Holidays (Monday - Friday)
18 Jan. End 1st Semester (Friday)
12 Feb. Lincoln's Birthday (Tuesday)
22 Feb. Washington's Birthday (Friday)
8-12 Apr. Easter Holidays (Monday - Friday)
30 May Memorial Day (Thursday)
The first quarter will end on 9 November, a Friday.
The third quarter will end on 29 March, also a Friday.
School will end on 13 June.
The total amount of school days will be 180.

The Carmel High School student body will be headed by Jeff McKenna for the first semester of this school year. McKenna, voted president last spring, feels that "lack of communication" between the student government and the student body represents the greatest problem facing the school.

Other student body officers are Stan Smith, Vice President; Gay Beauchamp, Secretary; Pat Meyers, Treasurer. Commissioners: Toshia Seeders, Social Affairs; Barbara Murphy, Girls' Athletics; Bob Larsen, Boys' Athletics; Ed Brown, Traffic Control; Kathy Burkett, Publicity.

Fire Truck Exchange

Carmel's well-preserved but not-so - sturdy - as - it - once - was 1948 Mack fire engine left for San Francisco last week with assistant fire chief Raleigh Belvail at the wheel. It will come home in about a month with its pump and engine in good condition again.

Meanwhile, the Mack's place at the firehouse is being filled by a G.M.C. engine loaned to the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department by the California Disaster Office of the state's civil defense organization. It has a 500-gallon tank and a 1,000-gallon-per-minute pumper.

This engine was loaned to the city on one condition: If it is needed for any major disaster, one of Carmel's paid firemen and a volunteer officer must respond to such a call anywhere in California.

And, early in 1963, the firehouse will be brightened by a brand new truck.

Critique V Speakers

Mark Schorer, head of the English department at the University of California and author of Sinclair Lewis, a biography, among other books, will open Monterey Peninsula College's fifth series of commentaries, Critique V, on the evening of 2 November in the Armory, and return 9 and 16 November. The titles of his talks will be Literary Censorship, Literary Creativity, and Literary Confession.

Schorer will be followed in April by Dr. Adrienne Koch, UC professor of history and philosophy, who will speak on Three Great Americans and Their Significance Today (Jefferson, Madison and Adams).

Judi Zellhoefer Wed Saturday

Joanne Judith Zellhoefer became the bride of David Zaches on Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. in All Saints' Episcopal Church. The Reverend David Hill performed the ceremony before the altar decorated with fan shaped arrangements of white stock, chrysanthemums and gladioli.

Judi, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Zellhoefer of Carmel Highlands, was given in marriage by her father. Her antique white satin gown was fashioned on classical lines, with a marquisette yoke edged in satin scroll embroidery, long sleeves, and a scalloped chapel train. Her elbow-length illusion veil was held by a circlet of pearls. She carried a crescent bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Rita Arnold of Santa Barbara was Judi's maid of honor, wearing a princess style dress of mint green satin, and a matching pillbox hat with tiny veil. Yellow carnations and variegated ivy formed her bouquet. The bridesmaids, Patty Elston of Carmel, Laurel Martin of Los Angeles, and Anne Kluegel of Berkeley, were similarly clad, with orange carnations in their bouquets.

David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Zaches of Monterey. Performing best man duties for the bridegroom was Daniel Eric Londahl, and the ushers were the bride's brothers, John and Jerry Zellhoefer, and the bridegroom's brother-in-law, Gregor Peterson of Saratoga.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Zellhoefer chose a hyacinth blue silk faille gown, petal hat of matching blue with a short green veil, and white accessories. She wore a corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. Zaches was attired in a peacock blue raw silk sheath with a small matching hat. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Two hundred guests attended the reception after the wedding in the Bali Room of the Naval Postgraduate School, toasted the young couple in champagne, and admired the three-tiered wedding cake surrounded by white gardenias and carnations on the bride's table.

Judi's going-away costume was a pink tweed suit with a deeper pink hat and veil and white accessories. She pinned on the white roses from her bridal bouquet. The newlyweds flew to Mexico for their honeymoon and will be at home in Walnut Creek after Monday when both must register at the University of California at Berkeley where they will be studying this fall.

Judi graduated from the University of California at Santa Barbara in June, and was a 1958 graduate of Carmel High School. Her husband, a Monterey High School graduate, attended Stanford University for three years, the Army Language School in Monterey, and has recently completed two years' military service in Europe.

Out of town guests here for the wedding included Judi's aunt, Mrs. Russell C. Aikins of Cooperstown, New York; her uncle, Dr. Howard Zellhoefer of Las Vegas; Mrs. Gregor Peterson of Saratoga, Dave's sister; Mrs. James Ryan and Mrs. Van Garrison of Merced, his aunts; Emmett Schugren of Nevada City, his uncle; and Mr. and Mrs. R. Lloyd Thomas of San Francisco.

Penn State University Degree

In ceremonies held at Pennsylvania State University on Saturday, John B. Payne of Carmel received a Ph.D. degree in electrical engineering.

Mrs. Seitz Weds Col. Braman

In a twilight ceremony at the Church of the Wayfarer 25 August, Mrs. Ruth Brown Seitz of Carmel and Colonel Arthur Henry Braman (USAF, ret.) of Saratoga repeated wedding vows to Dr. K. Fillmore Gray before members of their respective families including the bride's son, George R. Everhart of Hollywood, and Mrs. Everhart; also Colonel Braman's daughter, Mrs. Joseph Munoz of Fort Ord (her husband was unable to be present as he is serving with the U.S. Army in the European theatre), and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Keith Braman of Saratoga.

The bride wore a cafe au lait brocaded satin sheath dress and jacket with matching satin shoes, also bag, on which she pinned a corsage of white butterfly orchids and stephanotis. Veiling and velvet trimmed her white flower hat.

Mrs. Janice B. Wood of Carmel was her sister's attendant, and Keith Braman performed best man duties for his father. Mrs. Wood's black sheath dress was trimmed with a waist corsage of white carnations. She wore a black veiled hat and white accessories.

Following the ceremony, the bridal couple was toasted in champagne at the bride's Carmel home, Rose Cottage. Afterwards, there was a wedding supper in the Crystal Room at Pine Inn.

Colonel and Mrs. Braman will leave soon to occupy the former's home in Saratoga, but they are retaining Rose Cottage and will be frequent visitors to Carmel.

Comingses Back Home

Among vacationers returning to Carmel homes recently were the Sherman Comingses of Atherton Drive, who spent part of their time with friends and relatives in Southern California, part in the Santa Cruz mountains. Mrs. Comings with daughters Rosemary, Carolyn and Kathy went south and Mr. Comings joined the family for the mountain sojourn.

Baptism Ceremony For David

David Lawrence Baxter, four-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Baxter, was baptized at All Saints' Episcopal Church at 12:30 p.m. on Sunday, Reverend David Hill officiating. Godparents are Betsy Baxter, the baby's aunt; Tony Weaver and Dyke Stout. Also attending the ceremony were David's great-grandmother, Mrs. R. G. Dundas, his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carney and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Baxter, all of Carmel, and his two-year-old brother, Michael.

Bartons Return To San Jose

Erica and Bob Barton left Carmel on Tuesday for their home in San Jose after a visit of several weeks with Bob's mother, Mrs. George Dunbaugh. With them were their three children, Jessica, three and a half, Sabrina, two, and Adam, 11 months old.

This year Bob, who has been teaching at San Jose City College, will hold a teaching assistantship at Stanford University. He will give one class of freshman English and otherwise study for his doctorate in English. "Later, when Bob is writing his dissertation, we hope to spend more time here in Carmel," Erica says.

Also enjoying her grandchildren's visit was Mrs. Berthe Simpson, Erica's mother.

Carmel Girl Featured

Diane Herdt, a sophomore student at Monterey Peninsula College, will be featured in an all-California issue of Look Magazine on the newsstands next Tuesday.

A liberal arts major from Castro Valley, Diane was one of two models used in a picture story entitled Northern California Beaches —Some Like It Cold. She makes her home in Carmel while attending MPC.

She was present at a San Francisco ceremony on Tuesday in which Governor Edmund Brown was presented a bound copy of the issue. The presentation was later featured on TV and newsreel news films.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The indestructible relationship of God and man will be emphasized at Christian Science church services Sunday.

Scriptural selections in the Lesson-Sermon on "Man" include the following verse (Psalm 18): "It is God that girdeth me with strength, and maketh my way perfect."

A citation to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states (p. 470): "The relations of God and man, divine Principle and idea, are indestructible in Science; and Science knows no lapse from nor return to harmony, but holds the divine order or spiritual law, in which God and all that He creates are perfect and eternal, to have remained unchanged in its eternal history."

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT THOMAS DEVLIN

Jane Penelope (Penny) Bunn and Robert Thomas Devlin are pictured above shortly after their marriage on 31 August in Redwood City. Witnesses at the ceremony, which took place in San Mateo County Courthouse, were Catherine Devlin, Bob's sister, and three close friends, Miss Bayley Logan, Samuel F. B. Morse III and John Herbert.

Mrs. R. Lent Hooker of Hillsborough, and Thomas McConnell Bunn of Pebble Beach are Penny's parents. She is the sister of Thomas M. Bunn, Jr., Christopher, Clonard and Josephine Bunn, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Mary Mae Austin of South Pasadena and the late Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan T. Bunn.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Coghlan Devlin of Pebble Beach and Sacramento are Bob's parents. Another sister is Mrs. Wesley Parker, and Arthur Devlin, Jr., is his brother. The late Mr. and Mrs. George M. Valentine and the late Mr. and Mrs. William Hugo Devlin are his grandparents.

Penny attended Katherine Delmar Burke School, Wellesley College, and graduated in 1960 from the University of California where she was affiliated with Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. She also studied at San Francisco College for Women.

Bob attended Menlo College and is a University of Arizona graduate.

The newlyweds are traveling in the Orient for a month and will make their home in San Francisco.

First Child For The Suttons

Jeffrey Raymond Sutton, the first child and very new son of Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Sutton (Nancy Nielsen), whose birthday was on Friday, was born with an impressive complement of great-grandmothers to his credit. They are Mrs. M. K. Hall of Carmel, Mrs. Jessie Sutton of Monterey, and Mrs. Mary Rogers of Firebaugh. No less proud are the baby's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nielsen and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sutton, all of Carmel.

Jeffrey, who weighed seven pounds and 10 ounces, was born at the Peninsula Community Hospital.

Portrait Unveiling Party

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Barron of San Anselmo were hosts at a gathering Saturday evening in the home of Senator Fred Farr and Mrs. Farr to "unveil" a portrait of their son, Gerald, which had been painted by Richard Lofton.

Among those who came to admire the portrait and toast the painter were, besides the Farrs and the Loftons, Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Doner, Mrs. Martha Dalton, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. William Arley Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bray, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Antoncich, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Barton, Mrs. Berthe Simpson, Dr. Friedy Heisler and Francis Heisler, who together with members of the younger generation made a total of about 30 appreciative guests.

Carmel Valley Babies

A son, Nicholas Eli, was born 17 August at the Monterey Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Eli Boche of Rancho San Carlos Road. The baby, who has a sister, Cindy, 10 months old, is the grandson of Mrs. E. J. Boche of Sonoma, and of Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson of Huntington, West Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. David Allen Goetz of Paso Hondo became the parents of their first child, a son named Benjamin Blaine, on 22 August. The proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jules Goetz and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Kennedy, all of Monterey.

Elizabeth Menand Baptized

On 28 June, former Carmelites Mr. and Mrs. Jon Menand (Cynthia Cox) who now live in Tuolumne County, became the parents of a little girl named Elizabeth. On Saturday afternoon in All Saints' Episcopal Church at 4 p.m. the baby will be baptized by the Reverend Samuel Earl Smith, also a former Carmelite, and a friend of Elizabeth's parents. Also present at the ceremony will be the baby's godfather, George Cavey of Philadelphia; her two grandmothers, Mrs. Mina Menand and Mrs. Louis Cox, both of Carmel; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Smith, Sr., of Carmel, parents of the officiating clergyman; and the Reverend David Hill and Mrs. Hill.

Little Elizabeth has a 19-months-old brother, Jon, Jr., The Menands make their home in Mi-Wuk Village, east of Sonora, where Jon is serving with the California Division of Forestry.

Miss Lindsay-Oliver Away

Miss Mary Lindsay-Oliver left Carmel last week end and will visit Chicago and Washington, D.C., before sailing on Wednesday for England on the Queen Elizabeth. While in the British Isles she will paint a commissioned portrait in Scotland. She also hopes, in Southampton, to see Commodore McLean of the Cunard Line, whose portrait she painted two years ago when she was crossing to the United States and he was captain of the Queen Elizabeth.

Miss Lindsay-Oliver will return to this country on 30 October and attend a music critics' meeting in New York in November before coming back to Carmel.

Miss Evelyn Parker, an artist from Burlingame, is occupying Miss Lindsay-Oliver's studio home while she is abroad.

NOTHING EVER GOES WRONG with this wonderful little house in Carmel. Well built 12 years ago, loved and beautifully maintained ever since. It isn't large as far as square footage goes, but it's large in extras like charm, storage space, location, a 53 ft. lot, and it has three pleasant bedrooms, lovely living room with fireplace, beam ceilings, a dining room, and a compact, efficient kitchen. Just 4 level blocks from the village and on the bus line. Completely and tastefully furnished from stem to stern, clean as a button throughout. You can move right in without even dusting for just $31,500. By all means see this one if you're tired of looking at places to "fix-up."

NEW HOUSE IN TOWN: Just a couple of blocks from the Pine Inn and the beach we feature a 3 bedroom, 2 bath house, barely lived in yet, which we consider a very good value at $29,000. Call Abby for details about this new listing. Broker cooperation invited also.

ADOBE AND WEATHERED REDWOOD, a really handsome house with extensive ocean, valley and mountain views and charming patios and landscaping. For the really discriminating couple who like to live informally but graciously, this two bedroom home is nothing short of ideal. Deep wool carpeting, beautiful draperies, all appliances included at the unexpectedly low price of $45,000. It couldn't be replaced for $55,000. Did I mention the double garage and off-street parking court? I just listed the house and am so thrilled with it at this price that it's hard to decide what to include in these few words. Better arrange an appointment and see for yourself. Call also started on opening day. No seventh and eighth graders attended the school.

In 1906 Sunset was established for eight grades. Some years ago it was converted to sixth, seventh and eighth grade instruction only. Tuesday it became a kindergarten through sixth grade neighborhood school and for the first time in years little children began their education at the south end of the campus.

"I have returned to the little blue building where I started to teach in Carmel," Mrs. Anna Kohner, kindergarten teacher, observed. Mrs. Kohner will instruct one kindergarten session, spend the rest of each school day as the resource teacher for the district's gifted children program.

No student events will take place in venerable Sunset's auditorium until it complies with safety recommendations made by the state fire marshal and Carmel's fire chief, Robert Smith, according to Stuart Mitchell, superintendent of the Carmel school district.

For the time being, the middle playground is the only one being used by the students during recesses. This is because Sunset has such a small faculty at present that supervision would be difficult if all three playfields were in use. However, physical education classes are being conducted on the north playfield. It is also available for noontime recreation.

Later, this program will be revised when rooms in the main building south of the auditorium are converted into offices for the superintendent's staff. Then the middle field will not be used by the pupils.

Students are being transported to schools in the system this year by eight buses. One is a new 91-passenger vehicle which picks up students through Carmel and takes them to the junior high school. There is also a 12-passenger carry-all being used to take physically handicapped students to various places of instruction.

Joe Goodrick, head of the district's transportation system, estimated on Tuesday that 1,000 students were taken to the seven schools in the eight buses operating on tight schedules.

There are four empty classrooms in the district. This is because enrollments have not increased as forecast. In the past two years enrollments have increased only four or five percent, according to Wayne Greenfield, assistant superintendent of the district. Prior to this, the yearly increase in the number of pupils in the district was as high as ten percent. Future attendance projections at that time were for enrollments greater than have materialized in the past two years.

Other emptied classrooms in the schools, this year, are being converted to varied uses, and, as the system's speech therapist remarks, "Thank goodness, I am no longer teaching in broom closets."

At Sunset School only the auditorium is not in use, and the rooms designated to become district administration offices.

Woods School's unoccupied classroom, this year, will be used for special services (speech therapy and remedial reading) and as a part-time library.

At River School, six classrooms were freed by the opening of the junior high school and the conversion of Sunset School to a K-6 facility. Three will remain empty; others will become music and special services instruction rooms. There is also a library addition at River.

Tularcitos School has one vacant classroom. Four rooms freed by the K-6, junior high and high school program just begun in the system, will be used for other purposes. Two classrooms will become music rooms; the third, an art room; the fourth a special services room.

Carmelo, the junior high and high schools have no unused classrooms. At the high school the classrooms emptied by the opening of the junior high school have been converted to language laboratory use or combined into a lecture room for large classes.

It is not expected, however, that the four unoccupied rooms in the school system will remain vacant long. In the meantime there is space for newcomers.

"And suppose," suggested Clayton Neill, member of the board of education, "if another family as large as the Beardsleys' were to arrive."

In other words, the Carmel Unified School District has moved slightly ahead of California's population explosion. For the first time in many years there is ample instruction space and a little left over.

Mr. Neill and the other members of the school board, Mrs. Roxana Blanks, Dr. Robert E. Newton, Dr. Richard Snyder and Chairman Dr. Grant Fletcher, are happy about this elimination of overcrowding in Carmel district schools, although not sure it will extend beyond the just-begun 1962-63 academic year.

Dr. Walter Klas, principal, and the faculty of Carmel Junior High School, during the next month or so, will prove that children can be educated under far-from-perfect conditions. Their accommodation to the uncompleted facility should be an example to the students in life adjustment. For the next few weeks, also, any student late for class may say "I fell into a ditch," ... and it will be life adjustment, too.

Opening day enrollments in the seven schools in Carmel district were as follows: Sunset, 184; Woods, 202; River, 362; Tularcitos, 359; Carmelo, 186; Carmel Junior High, 521; Carmel High School, 604.

Everyone will have an Admission Day holiday on Monday.

body to dispute the exploiters. Is Carmel-by-the-Sea eventually to be any different? There are some who say it is foolish to protest to the contrary, when increasingly little to the contrary can be demonstrated.

Incidentally, I have studiously avoided saying anything about the "weekender", a curious mutation of no distinguishable properties. He, also, probably merits some attention, but by whom I'm at a loss to discover.

Carmel Point Street Repairs

Monterey County Road Commissioner Bruce McClain, announces that county road crews will apply a bituminous surface treatment to several streets in the Carmel Point area during the latter portion of September. The streets are as follows:

Name of Street	From	To
Bay View	Santa Lucia	Ocean View
Carmelo Avenue	Santa Lucia	Scenic
Fifteenth Avenue	Valley View	Carmelo
Fourteenth Avenue	San Antonio	Carmelo
Hilltop	San Antonio	Inspiration
Inspiration	Isabella	Bay View
Isabella	San Antonio	Scenic
Martin Street	San Antonio	Scenic
Ocean View	Scenic	Scenic
Rio Avenue	Sixteenth	Seventeenth
San Antonio	Santa Lucia	Inspiration
Scenic Road	Santa Lucia	Carmelo
Seventeenth Avenue	Valley View	Carmelo
Sixteenth Avenue	Carmelo	Isabella
Stewart Way	Inspiration	Scenic
Valley View	San Antonio	Scenic

Road crews will give notice to the residents of the above streets approximately 24 hours prior to treatment. Those residents will be asked not to park their vehicles in the area on the date of the work so as to minimize the possibility of damage to either the streets or to their vehicles.

mer for stop signs at Santa Fe and Mountain View by adopting the report of Councilman James Buffington, Jr., which found that the incidence of accidents at the intersection was negligible, and traffic volume was usually inconsequential. This was not surprising, in view of the city's reluctance to see a proliferation of stop signs. A request of Kai Mortensen for limited parking on Fourth Avenue between San Carlos and Mission was continued.

But traffic, as a concommitant of the automobile which moves among us and pursues us with relentless authority was not through. The report of Councilman Herbert B. Blanks, recommending an improvement of Junipero Avenue between Seventh and Eighth avenues financed entirely from state gas tax funds, came up against the classic dilemma of traffic (moving) and traffic (parked); the dynamic and static conflict.

Councilman Buffington, listening patiently while the report was read, pounced at the conclusion on the question of whether or not the project would provide parking in the middle of the street. The intimation that he wasn't in favor of anything which didn't permit such utilization of the space now occupied by young, burgeoning pines, was practically inescapable. Whether or not the project ever got to the point of authorizing the city engineer, Clayton Neill, to prepare at least preliminary plans, hinged on whether these battle lines would solidify or remain fluid.

At last they remained fluid. The council authorized the preparation of preliminary plans by the device of adopting Blanks's report, but the glowering storm clouds of a battle over on-street parking when they were submitted were ominously apparent when Buffington concluded the discussion with a grim remark, "we can discuss this matter (parking) when the plans come up. This matter isn't decided yet."

From then on the meeting skidded along as if floating on melted butter. The council acted to: authorize the purchase of a vibrating patch roller (with several mischievous chuckles); the advancement of administrative clerk Billie Postel to Step Two of the appropriate salary range; the attendance of Fire Chief Robert Smith at the Pacific Coast Inter-Mountain Association of Fire Chiefs' convention in San Francisco 17-20 September, together with Assistant Fire Chief James R. Belvail; approved a sidewalk repair variance for Glen Sorey on Casanova north of Ocean Avenue, but not without an inspiring amount of breast-beating and soul-searching over a violation of regulations by Sorey's contractor, the Peninsula Paving Company, which had violated tree planting space regulations — and not for the first time. This matter gave rise to a profound and agonizing reappraisal of the matter of conformity with these regulations, which now rests with a frowning committee on administration, consisting of the relatively unwrinkled brows of Mayor Whittlesey and Councilman Whitaker.

Compulsory collection of garbage—not an ordinary function of the august council — seems in the offing. An ordinance establishing this requirement, which has languished while city attorney John Morse has negotiated with the franchise holders, may come up at the next meeting. While it probably will affect only about 10% of those presently generating garbage, the council has felt it necessary to prevent the abuse of using public receptacles for convenient but fee-free disposal.

OBITUARIES

Miss Gladys Harvey

Miss Gladys Theodora Harvey died 2 September in the home she shared with Miss Celia Harris, a close friend, on Camino Real between Eleventh and Twelfth avenues following a period of failing health.

Miss Harvey was born in Oshkosh, Wisconsin, 76 years ago. She moved to California with her mother and was on the staff of the San Jose adult education department, also gave a course on Pacific international relations. She was also principal of a San Jose Americanization school.

In 1923, Miss Harvey moved to Carmel and remained here until 1929. In 1945 she returned from San Jose to make her permanent home here with Miss Harris. She was a member of the First Church of Christ, Scientist.

Before coming to California, Miss Harvey taught interior decoration at Stout Institute in Wisconsin. She received her training at the Minneapolis School of Design and the Chicago Art Institute. During World War I she investigated child labor for the children's bureau in Providence, Rhode Island. Miss Harvey also headed a campaign for raising the salaries of teachers in the Wisconsin rural schools.

Interested in the Oriental problem, she studied political science at the University of California. Her father, Dr. L. D. Harvey, was superintendent of schools for the state of Wisconsin and president of Stout Institute.

She leaves a nephew, Lynn A. Williams of Winnetka, Illinois, and a niece, Miss Cora Burdick of Pacific Grove.

Private services were held at the Paul Mortuary with inurnment to follow in Riverside Cemetery, Oshkosh Wisconsin.

Mrs. Marian Webster

Mrs. Marian Stone Webster died in a local hospital following a period of failing health on 30 August. She had lived at Shafter Way and Oak Place for ten years after moving here from Stockton. Her husband, Percy S. Webster, survives her; also a daughter, Mrs. Katherine Webster Parsons; a son, Roger B. Webster; and five grandchildren.

Private funeral services were held in Stockton. Paul Mortuary was in charge of local arrangements.

Jane Henderson

Mrs. Jane Henderson died on 3 September in her home on Dolores Street near Eighth Avenue. A native of Germany, she had become a United States citizen and been employed as a secretary to the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce. Her daughter, Carol Ann Henderson, 11, survives her; also her mother, Mrs. Elsa von Schmiterlow of West Berlin, Germany.

Funeral services are pending and will be announced later by Paul Mortuary.
